

Introduction to Employment Practices Liability Insurance

Course Description

This introductory course will provide an insight into the risks covered by the different types of employment practices liability insurance ('EPL') policies current in the UK market and the structure and operation of such policies. The purpose is to explain how an employer may arrange insurance protection against the growing risk of liability arising from employment-related disputes.

Target Audience

Delegates will be expected to have a basic knowledge of liability insurance principles and practice; knowledge of employment law is not required. They may be underwriters, brokers, policy technicians, claims-handlers or lawyers involved in the provision of insurance or advice to commercial clients.

Course Objectives

On completion of the course delegates will:

- Understand the types of employment disputes between employees and their employers
- Have knowledge of how changes in legislation are increasing the exposure of firms to employment practices liability claims
- Have an understanding of the types of claims made under employment practices liability policies in the U.K. and USA
- Understand the factors that are likely to result in increasing litigation against employers
- Know how cases are brought to employment tribunal in England and Wales
- Understand the coverage provided by an Employment Practices Liability insurance policy
- Understand the differences between an Employment Practices Liability policy and Legal Expenses insurance
- Have an understanding of the principal underwriting considerations that apply when underwriting Employment Practices Liability insurance
- Understand what risk management measures firm will use to reduce the likelihood of employment practices litigation

Course Format

This course will be presented as an interactive workshop with a mixture of tuition and case studies.
